MP Biomedicals to Cooperate with Russian Nanotechnology Corporation in Nanobiotechnology

Santa Ana, CA, May 14, 2010 - MP Biomedicals CEO Milan Panic and RUSNANO CEO Anatoly Chubais have signed an agreement of cooperation. The parties have agreed to cooperate in the areas of nanotechnology research and development, in creation and modernization of an R&D base, and in providing due conditions for production of innovative pharmaceuticals, including personal pharmacogenetic treatments.

MP Biomedicals and RUSNANO plan to jointly implement projects focused on anti-aging and increasing in life expectancy, as well as creating the infrastructure for innovations in the area of nanobiotechnology.

Both parties have agreed to participate in the work of scientific, coordinating and other councils, expert commissions and working groups on nanobiotechnology and pharmaceutical industry, which relate to areas of the signed agreement. MP Biomedicals and RUSNANO also decided to jointly provide mutual methodological and scientific-medical support for studies in the area of nanotechnology.

MP Biomedicals and RUSNANO will also collaborate on creating the information infrastructure to ensure the establishment and support of databases related to scientific and medical developments, along with innovative projects in the field of biotechnology, pharmaceutical industry and nanotechnology.

The parties will elaborate the long-term forecast for areas of nanotechnology application in the field of life sciences, pharmaceuticals and related industries with the allocation of promising emerging markets, products and services, as well as a list of priorities and critical technologies in the pharmaceutical industry. In addition, MP Biomedicals and RUSNANO will consider investments in global regions with already developed pharmaceutical industry.
